WHAT THEY ARE SAYING AT A UNIQUE SUMMER RESORT.

The Board Walk, the Beach, the Summer Girl and Founder Bradley at Ashury Park-Surpassing Attractions-A Temperance Place and a Pleasant Resort.

[Special Correspondence.] ASBURY PARK, N. J., July 13 .- It is the consensus of opinion here that the 29c Dimities, to close. . . . 20 journalists whose presence enlivened this summer resort during last week's editerial convention were men of extreme 39c French Organdies 29 good taste, for while they did not neglect the sessions of their convention they devoted a great deal of attention to the three greatest attractions of the park-

JAMES A. BRADLEY. and the beach. Now that the molder. of public opinion have held their last meeting and departed, the streets and the sands, the hotels and the boarding houses, that fairly swarmed with them for six whole days, present a rather lonesome aspect, and the Asbury girl is somewhat at a loss as to how to dispose of her spare time. It is yet a little too early for the regular summer young man. Indeed, in the very height of the season, save on Saturdays and Sundays, he is not nearly so much in evidence here as his gentler counterpart, for the summer young man of Asbury Park is commonly a working young man.

The Summer Girl. If you are familiar with Asbury Park, you do not need to have it explained to you why the editors were taken with the Asbury girl, the board walk and the beach, but I shall assume that you are not acquainted with the place and am therefore going to say a word or two concerning these three surpassing attractions. And, of course, "ladies first, " The summer girl, as she manifests herself at Asbury Park, is unlike her sisters who disport themselves at other resorts either by shore or on the mountain side. She is not swell like the beauties of Newport or Narragansett; she is not us like the Ocean Grove young woman; she has not the combined qualities of devotion, studionsness and love of aquatics and athletics that distinguish the Chautauqua girl, but she is bright eyed and clear skinned, graceful and healthy and with only one manifest object in life-to have a "good time" after her own innocent fashion. She sits on the hotel verandas and reads light summer novels. She rides the wheel and rows on the little lakes to be found just back of the beach, but she never does either for a record. She sometimes dances in the evening, and she bathes. She lounges on the beach, too, sometimes in her bathing suit, but oftener not, since Founder Bradley made a rule a few years ago that no one should wear one of his bathing suits on his beach for more than one hour in one day. Some Asbury girls fond of basking in the sand in bathing suits circumvent the founder by pwning their own outfits, and then they are prone to wear them in the hammock as well as on the beach and even occasionally on the street.

A Set of Rules. There is no reason why the Asbury girl shouldn't be allowed to trip along the sidewalks clad in an Asbury bathing snit if she wants to, for it is a very modest rig. There are two reasons for this. One is that she is a most modest creature and has no wish to attire herself in vulgarly striking fashion when bathing. The other is that Founder Brudley has posted all about the place a set of rules regarding the conduct of summer folk, and one of these rules has to do with bathing suits. Whose breaks a regulation of his has to get off Founder Bradley's beach.

This Founder Bradley, though not one of Asbury Park's chief attractions, is its mainstay, and any writing concerning it in which he should not be mentioned would be like "Hamlet" without the Prince of Denmark. Mr. Bradley is now pretty well along in years. He was middle aged almost when, in became interested in Ocean Grove, then newly opened as a Methodist camp ground. What is now Asbury Park was at that time little better than a wilderness, but he saw its possibilities and bought up acres and acres of its scrubby timbered land and a long stretch of its beach. Then he offered great inducements to buyers of lots who should put up cottages, laid out streets, put in sewers and gas, built sidewalks, encouraged business enterprises and pushed things generally. Today, besides its population of tens of thousands during the warm season, it has thousands of permanent residents, seven churches, two weekly papers, a public library, good schools, an opera house, electric cars and lights -in fact, "all the improvements." 1869 the assessed valuation of property here was not above $15,000; now it exceeds $2,000,000. Though not like its neighbor, Ocean Grove, under the control of the Methodists, the management of the two places is to a certain extent harmondous, and no liquor is sold in Asbury Park-that is, there are stringent antiliquer selling ordinances, though they are semetimes evaded, and dealers in adjacent places do a thriving "original package" business here. Bradley has by this time sold a large propormore conducive to the good of the place than divided management could be. In this view probably nearly every one interested concurs.

The Board Walk. long, is built on the land edge of the beach and is from 20 to 32 feet wide. At frequent intervals there are seats and awnings, and it is truly a pleasant a promeuade. The salt breezes from the sen, the crowds of vacationers-rosy cheeked women and girls and brown skinned men, for the sun and the wind of Asbury bring tan very quickly-and the music of the band, all combine to rest and at the same time exhilarate.

Between the walk and the waves is the beach, lined with bathing houses and alive with summer folk from early morning till nearly midnight. One of the Bradley placards has it that "as a rule respectable people retire from the beach at 10:30 in the evening," but the radiance of the electric lights illumines the sand till 12, and there are plenty of "respectable people" who stay out until after the prescribed time.

FLY FAR AND FAST.

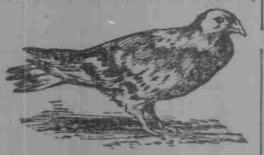

Homing Pigeons and the Interest Taken In Their Feats of Flight. [Special Correspondence.]

DETROIT, July 12 .- The time of year for the flying of homing pigeons for prizes offered by clubs and individual fanciers is about at hand, and an exciting time it is to persons who are interested in raising and developing these birds. There are several things about pigeon breeding and flying that the average newspaper reader does not know.

In the first place, the pigeons that fly far and fast are not carrier pigeons at all. Time was when the carrier could do what was thought to be a very satisfactory bit of flying both as to speed and endurance, but that time was at of Homing Pigeon Fanciers. Milwanleast half a century ago.

The crack birds for flying today are as far in a day as the old carrier could in two or three. Pigeons of the old carrier breed are still raised and carefully developed, but they are only bred for show now. The true homing bird is, in fact, a sort of mongrel, being composed of many strains of pigeon blood, and accordingly there are many types, and no single well defined characteristic beyond the ability to fly and to find its birthplace as yet marks this pigeon. I say 'as yet" because in the nature of things a well defined breed of homing pigeons will in time be developed, and though some of the past feats of the feathered races have been marvelous they are sure to be eclipsed by those of the future if birds be continued.

The first birds that can be considered 1870, he began operations here. He first to belong to the present homing class were produced about 50 years ago and were a cross between barbs and the old carriers. The passion for flying pigeons is now much more extensive than it was then, and it is extending every year. It is strongest in Holland and Belgium; is stronger in some English cities, particularly Manchester, than any place in the United States, but is every year gaining ground here. There are a number of funciers here in Detroit,
